The BLUE and GOLD

1931

Dedication

In an endeavor to appreciate his every service Principal F. L. Kinley, for his broad cheerfulness of character, for his constant leadership in routine affairs of this school, for his energetic approval of educational benefits, for his happy idealism of life, and for his enthusiastic faith in the youth of his acquaintance, we of the Class of 1931, his followers in the pursuit of culture, sincerely give this volume in dedication of its ideals coincident with those cherished by him.

FOREWORD

Life, laden with advances and reverses, grasps at that which it cannot reach. Forever above the material activities live the ideals of mankind, the hopes of progress, and the challenges of duty. It has been our end to develop throughout this book a portrayal of the ultimate of each endeavor exalted by these students and faculty. We try to sketch a glimpse of that which we cannot fully realize, that loftiest for which we strive. Over every channel of our quest of culture flies a highest purpose, a guide of our recurring efforts and our mortal accomplishments during these student years.

HIGHER than the knowledge acquired in the realm of school and more vital than the experience of activities gained in the process of education is the deep growth of spirit, the breadth and sincerity of character, born and nourished, we believe through the furtherance of schooling. The glowing light of learning burns brightest in the mind that has lived the most thoroughly and has felt the most keenly. From year to year, a mass of students leave this institution initiated to the primary forces of life. Those who have gained the highest benefit are those who have with ardent sincerity labored for the finest quality of scholarship.

SENIOR CLASS CHRONICLES

As the final chapter of the story of our high school career terminates, we, the Seniors of the Class of 1931, can glance back over our high school days and recall them as six of the happiest years of our youth. From the time of our entrance as the first class in the junior high schools, we have endeavored to accomplish with our utmost power the duties that we have encountered.

Leaving the junior high school days behind us, we entered into the graduated functions of senior high school with all the possible zest that a sophomore class could have, eagerly participating in the various activities to which we were eligible.

As we passed on to the second year at Findlay High, we carried on the more vital routines of the school, standing high in athletics, scholarship, and organization functions. In our junior year the class sponsors, Miss Helen Wiseley and Mr. R. G. Alexander, aided us in the selection of the humorous play, "Polly With a Past," skillfully enacted by some representative members of our group directed by Miss Sylvia West. At the close of the year we entertained the graduating class at one of the most picturesque receptions carried out in our gym.

The senior year comprises the highest glory and also the hardest work of the high school years. Of foremost importance are the scholastic standards that we have upheld in triumph, standards which have been augmented by succeeding classes of students. In social activities, as in publication functions, we have guided the underclassmen in business and executive work and have tried to present to them an example which they must continue and improve.

In the presentation of the fine drama, "Clarence" by Booth Tarkington, we did our part to produce another success for the director, Miss Sylvia West. With her aid and with the assistance of Mr. Dale Hutson we have steadily accomplished the work of the year.

To the following classes we can only bid them learn by our experiences and carry on the ideals that we have striven for that our school may better form us for the complicated life to come.

CLASS PROPHECY

Siss!———Boom!———Whizz! We're off. And settling ourselves comfortably back into the soft cushions in the cabin chairs of the sky rocket plane on this, our first trip to the planets, we let our minds wander back to the events fifteen years preceding this trip. Hazily we recalled to our mind's eye happy school day memories and dear old school chums whom we had almost forgotten. Oh, how long ago it seems, before this marvelous rocket had been perfected by that famous wizard, Stephen A. Stuntz. Now, the rocket planes are as common as the rickety Ford roadsters which graced the entrance to old Findlay High in the days of '31.

Our pleasant reverie was rudely interrupted by a gruff bass voice at our side. "Tickets, please!" We looked into the unsmiling features of Frank McCoy. A splendid Lucas Television Set was installed in our cabin, and there were daily supplies of the latest books and magazines which contained interesting stories and articles by the celebrated journalists, Fay Stover, Francis Chapman, and Sara Newton concerning the latest inventions and their inventors, among whom we recognized the names of Bob Thompson, Don Briggs, Edwin Clark, Harry Thompson and John Ohl. There were also articles relating biographies of the famous tennis stars, Martha Mertz and Mary Kirsten; universally famous boxing champion, Wallace England, and stories concerning the daily routines in the lives of the well-known society matrons, among whom we recognized Mrs. Russell Hendricks, formerly Evelyn Collins and Mrs. Richard Heck, the former Ellen Hybarger, whose husbands are partners in a huge meat-packing industry in America.

But on with the trip!

Our first stop was at a refueling station in mid-air, owned and operated by Shoupe and Bloomingdale "Incorpolated." After cheerful good-byes from these, two of our old high school chums, we hastily resumed our voyage with our trusty pilot, Jimmy Poole and his assistants, Ray Fisher, Kenneth Holloway, Leo Copeland, and Kenneth Fry.

At last we arrived at our first stop, Mars, the most densely populated of the planets. We were greeted at the entrance to its largest city by a huge smiling statue of its founder, Paul Mitchell, and later we were handed the keys to the city by its mayor, Max Briggs. Stopping at the large Hotel McCormick, we were ushered to our rooms by two trim bell-boys, Dick Phillips and Wilfred Black. After a rest, we proceeded to the georgeous dining room where, under the courteous service of the head waiter, George Stough, and his erstwhile assistants, Russ Alspach, Harold Solt, Ferald Haley, Edward Folk, Charles Tate, and Raymond Laub, we enjoyed a delicious dinner. Suddenly the strains of the large hotel orchestra drew our attention to a few of our old musical friends, Scott Elsea, Robert Bunje, Ray Chmitlin, Jerry Coon, Tony Wolfe, Malcolm George, and Wilbur Fry, with guest violinist, Madame Fink and guest soloist, Madame Foster.

Our evening's entertainment consisted of a theater party to the McIntosh Theater where the picture, an American Amsler-Alesch production, starred the two great screen lovers, Helen Gohlke and Joe Dufford with a supporting cast of Dorcas Hindall, Mary Taylor, Wilbur Weller, and Don Switzer. There was also added a side splitting comedy featuring that comic team, Bud Barger and Frank Beltz, and a Matthews News Reel which drew our attention to the preparations being made for a Mardi Gras to be held at the Planet Venus beginning the next day.

Upon seeing this notice, we decided that we would depart the next day for that planet in time to witness this merrymaking fete. However, our evening would not be complete without a visit to one of Mars' most famous night clubs, The Magoon. We were met by two charming hostesses, Edith Cope and Lois Stringfellow. After being conducted to our reserved table by the inimitable head waiter, Edward Smith, we proceeded to enjoy the dancing act, which included Ruth Ulrich, Violet Simendinger, Opal Rush, Esther Huffman, Helen Love, and Oletha Krantz. A specialty number was next presented featuring Betty Tyner, pianist and Dot Traxler, noted blues singer.

Tiring of the noise and confusion of the night club, we decided to retire to our hotel in order to be ready for the big time planned for the following day. As we were about to climb into a taxi plane, our pilot, Howard Arras called our attention to clanging firegongs and whistling of an on-coming fire-plane. Our curiosity and excitement aroused, we were eager to follow this fire plane to find out its destination, which proved to be a large office building exclusively for professional and business women. Among those whose offices were destroyed were Martha Ascham, famous chiropodist; Harriet Motes, dentist; Helen Schwyn, M. D.; Marvelene Ross, chiropractor; Elinor Carr, lawyer; and Josephine Price, beauty specialist. After the heroic efforts of rescue made by Fire Chief Frank Hoy and his brave firemen, Murray Bash, Karl Ludi, Lawrence Haugh, and Laverne Shafer, we returned to our hotel for our much needed rest.

Rising at dawn, we were soon whizzing on our way to the Queen of Planets, Venus, to be met by the president of the Chamber of Commerce, Ruth Moses, and other members of the committee, Delores Hauman, Pauline Doty, Pauline Dickson, Pauline Robarge, Grace Meek, and Esther Young.

Immediately we were awed by the splendor of its immense parks, beautiful buildings, and spacious theaters among which were the Don Fisher Building, Caldwell-Cochenour Park, Ruth Roberts Theaters, and Hosafros Drive. We were appalled by the large church presided over by Parson Fenimore.

The chief attraction in the city, of course, was the afore mentioned Mardi Gras. It was a gala affair and we recognized many of our old friends among its hilarious entertainers such as John Snyder, Kermit Roller, Bob Schwab, Hazel Severns, Dorothy Beam, Leota Haide, Faye Higley, Richard Steegman, and Carl Saltz.

But we had to hurry on. Our next stop was Saturn, the whirling industrial planet of the universe. We were greeted by the smoky haze of many factories among which were the Bayse Beanery, Holman Holeless Hose Corporation, Hanna Beauty Products Building, the Jacobs-Jordan Jam Company, and the Bayless Bakery, many of which buildings had been planned by the famous architect, Virginia Schafer.

Escaping the grime and grit of the cities, we sought the parks and amusement centers, and found especially interesting a trip through Lupher Zoo and Gardner Menagerie. We found to our amazement Joe Spangler, Eugene Folk, and Wade Ex, keepers of frisky cages full of monkeys, hyenas, and kangaroos, respectively. Though we desired to spend more time at the zoo, we were forced to leave for our next stop on the itinerary, Jupiter.

The main attraction on this planet was the Prager Traveling Circus, and old Findlay High was well represented. In the side show we found Raymond Moulder swallowing swords, the Dorothys Arnold and Brewster putting on a native Hawaiian dance, Jean Galloway amazing great crowds with her ventriloquist's powers, and Mary Lou Long as the wiley snake charmer.

In the main tent amid the shouts of eager peanut vendors, Jim Child and William Beall, we watched Pearl Claypoole dangle in mid-air suspended only by her perfect teeth, and Imo Cavins, Violet Fry, Loretta Denman, and Martha Ewers balancing on huge elephants with the most queenly of airs. The band under the direction of Ned Franks was playing a march which we later learned was composed by Paul Miller and Carl Maurer, graduates of the Joseph School of Music. After the main show we attended a Wild West performance whose participants were supposed to have come from the wild and wooley West of America, but under the large hats we recognized cowboys Walter Miller, Floy Parr, Paul Huffman, Ralph Hartman and cowgirls Eudora Roberts, Norma Stratton, Lola Mae Simmons, and Bonnie Patterson.

Our next stop was the famous Moon, and, of course, our destination was the proverbial green cheese factory owned by Bessie Shafer and managed by Ruth Smith. Outside the corporation we saw many truck drivers ready to start on their day's work. We quickly discerned Clifford Ward, Lawrence Leonard, Raymond Porter, and Harry Miller, whose trucks were manufactured by Leland Loach and Ralph Lee.

Seeing so many of our old school friends made us lonesome for some good "edgukatin," so we promptly entered the spacious Betty Patterson School for Girls and found Miss Patterson herself surrounded by a group of studious professors among whom we saw Professor of Psychology, Pauline Vandersall; Head of Music Department, Helen King; art instructor, Anabel Lee; dancing teacher, Mary Ellen Coldren; school nurse, Dorothy Sprow; mathematics professor, Mary Louise Winders; and Dean of Girls, Margaret Williamson.

The moon was interesting, but we were in a hurry to reach that one unique among all heavenly bodies, Neptune. It was an extremely cold climate and we immediately discarded our light moon clothing for the famous Kwis Saturn Suits which were the popular garment of the Saturn's inhabitants.

However, Saturn is the fashion center of the universe, and we immediately visited the exclusive George Hosler Fashion Shop and feasted our eyes on gorgeous wearing apparel modeled by the beautiful manequins, Hulda Doyle, Mary Hall, Helen Hoy, Effaleita Gohlke, and Beatrice Beltz.

That very night homesick for America we boarded our trusty rocket plane and zoomed out into the starry space toward Earth. We were given a rousing reception at the Halliwill-Laube Airport, and we were whisked off by our chauffeur, Glen Launder.

How good the familiar surroundings of Findlay, now a booming city looked. We settled back into our comfortable seats and watched the brilliant electric signs casting colorful reflections into the midnight skies. Here was a sign advertising a dainty tea shop owned and operated by Evelyn Tussing and Millicent Robinson. There loomed an exclusive millinery establishment, Mesdames Heistand and Hunt, proprietresses.

Ah! The famous Bee Radabaugh and her "Ramblers Orchestra" consisting of Cecilia Leonard, Frona Miller, Kathryn Pratt, Lora Snyder, Dorothy Taylor, and Mildred Yantis. And goodness! What's that ? Something new? The Burket-Courtney-Wilson Asylum for hysterically insane.

Suddenly our luxurious car lurched forward and we came in sight of an immense edifice covering several blocks, Old Findlay High!

JUNIOR CLASS CHRONICLES

Steadily and earnestly following the precedents instituted by former students, the versatile Class of 1932 has yearly tested its energetic spirit on the hardest scholastic tasks in school life. By cheerful and vigorous achievement has this group of young scholars borne its burden of increased activities which it assumed upon the passing from the rank of lower classmen with the arrival of the junior year.

Activities of this class during the freshmen term are numbered in publications, societies, athletics, and dramatics.

With their entrance into our building these pupils have carried with them their same energy and unselfish labor in student affairs. In the first year at Senior High popular leaders selected to direct the sophomore body through the year were Charles Brandman, president; Richardson Davis, vice-president; Edward Cole, secretary; and George Gray, treasurer.

In addition to active interest in musical organizations and club events of the school these youths have been particularly occupied with literary, oratorical, and business affairs. Certainly no preceding class has accomplished as much in sports as this group has singularly performed with its talented athletic power.

"The Youngest," Philip Barry's novel play, was the dramatic presentation of the Juniors. In natural ability and ease of acting the players, representative of their class, have outranked former actors of amateur dramatics.

In the compulsory functions of the school as well as in those works voluntary contribution the individual students of the second year group have shown themselves equally interested and helpful. In consideration of the fine determination, the quality of ability, and the wisdom of decisions gathered together within the various members, we foretell an ascending career of usefulness and energetic pursuance of later tasks and trades of ex-school life.

In unity with the supervision of their sponsors, Miss Ruth Finton and Mr. George Frack, and with the similiar guidance of their student leaders, this fine assemblage of pupils have reliably and conscientiously performed each piece of work given them to do.

SOPHOMORE CLASS CHRONICLES

With the characteristic equality of temperament and general geniality of the first year group, the enthusiastic Class of 1933 has infused its spontaneous good humor and cheerful freshness into the spirits of the older and more harassed upper classmen. Primarily striving to grow acquainted with the customs and standards of a new school environment, the sophomores have been genuinely active in high school affairs.

Having passed through the system of education at the twin Junior High Schools, the members of this class have experienced vital training in the various curricula of these separate institutions. Within the terms spent in learning and functions preparatory for the more complicated labors of Senior High, each individual has thrown his energies into the furthering of at least one organization of the junior schools.

Differences and similarities prominent in the north and south junior preparatory schools have mingled into one progressive unit with the sophomores' ingress into this building of higher learning. Contending equally for the same goals of learning and character building these younger students have found new friends and are working effectively in the routine of high school duties.

In the mid-week chapel services, in the various social organizations, in debate work, in student governing activities, in musical functions, and in business affairs have the lower classmen willingly and even skillfully plied their talents toward the growth of the school.

Physical ability appears just as prominent in this year's youngest group as it was in the previous year. Each succeeding class which enters our school from the junior ones is doing its share in building up athletic material from which our coaches are able to select fine, sturdy teams for sports activities.

Faculty leaders for this group, the newest aspirants to the ideals of learning and accomplishments, to whom we can pass on our added motives for education, are Miss Ruth Switzer and Mr. W. D. Humphrey.

THE distinctive difference between virtual life and mere existence is the sparkling zest of vitality with which the former effervesces and which the latter wants. The true life of our school times blazes in the activities in which we earnestly and thoroughly participate. In broader terms, the forceful action of life is born of the powerful manifestations of human energy. Nothing is more wholly in sympathetic relation to our education than the vigorous functions which we perform. A cross section of strenuous urban life forecasts thoughts of the versatility of future activities and forewarns us students of the concentrated duties of times to come.

FOURTH—R. Alesch, W. Weller, R. Kwis.

Perhaps every individual has sensed the sharpness of business laxity prominent over the period of this year, but no group has felt this needle of depression so much as have these industrious solicitors of advertisements for the Blue and Gold annual. To meet the added decrease of willingness of merchants to submit ads, the teams were forced to develop their efforts and increase their efficiency. Though at intervals it seemed impossible to fill the quota among the local business men, these students finally carried the odds and, by determination and ceaseless work, were able to turn in enough local advertisements to finance this book.

No institution can succeed if its financial base is unfirm. This same maxim applies intensely to the completion of a high school year-book, as it does with every other activity of the school. Hence we owe much to the labor and interest of this squad of solicitors. Their cooperation and assistance have earned praise deserved to a greater degree this year than in former times. We wish the teams of next year an easier financial situation with which to deal.

HOME ROOM SOLICITORS

FIRST—B. Daymon, R. Leader, P. Jackson, M. LaRowe, K. Pratt, M. Hall.

SECOND—M. Foster, D. Gohlke, E. Thompson, B. Beck, M. Weising, C. Reynolds, E. Huffman.

FOURTH—D. Armbrecht, K. Knight, J. Ebersole, G. Fenimore, S. Stuntz, P. Price, J. Dufford.

These cooperating representatives of their individual home rooms are responsible for the business organization necessary for the effective maintenances of various transactions carried on during the year. Not only have these solicitors brought about the success of this yearbook, but also have they directed the subscriptions for the student newspaper. Not an activity of dramatics or music occured within the school but these boys and girls were summoned to boost its success with monetary aid. Never did they fail to turn their efforts to the trying task of financing the yearly productions and debates.

With the slack use of money this year the work for the group was especially difficult. Nevertheless, no activity of the school suffered because of lack of needed funds, and, indeed, receipts show no marked decrease from the balance of the previous years.

As a crown of laurel for those who have upheld an average of ninety percent or more for their full high school course, fine scholarship is rewarded with admittance to the Honor Class. This year, with a change of grading system, the requirements for membership to this group of note have tended to grow more rigid and more exacting.

The utmost of scholarship, the most concentrated study, and the keenest of thought and action are represented in this assemblage of the intellectual finest of the school. Individual labor and energetic growth of mind have been the factors of character which have attained for their owners this scholarly nobility of rank.

These, the highest in studies and representative also of leadership in activities, are the possessors of the broadest and deepest knowledge obtained through the high school program. It is to such as these, if their work is continued in the same manner, that the higher offices of life will be given.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

FIRST—E. Hybarger, B. Patterson, F. Stover, L. Denman, M. Ascham, D. Sprow, B. Tyner.

The aspiration of so many and the attainment of so few is the privilege of becoming one of the National Honor Society, an institution founded to recognize activities and abilities of the finest of students. The members of the Blue and Gold chapter of this organization were chosen through the recommendation of a council composed of Miss Glendora Mills, Miss Lena Kiefer, Miss Mae Fassett, Mr. F. L. Kinley, Mr. Cecil Robbins, and Mr. Dale Hutson.

Scholarship in the upper fourth of the class, unselfish rendering of service, worthiness of character, and student leadership are the essentials placing seniors in this organization most lofty in its aims and requisites. These four characteristics are found blended into one fine life in every member of this group. It is this balance of talents and labors which placed them over others.

So careful is the selection that a unanimous vote of the faculty is the final voice of recommendation for these student members.

STUDENT COUNCIL

FIRST—C. Brooks, M. Orwick, A. Lee, L. Wolfe, I. Dorsey, M. Biery, M. Maurer, E. Fairbanks, M. Ascham, R. Maxwell, H. Love.

FIFTH—R. Shoupe, R. Westfall, R. Alesch, W. Weller.

Corresponding in principles to the student senate of university life, the Student Council of our school has been the sole organization established for student welfare and service to the school itself. Comprising representatives of the pupils from every home room and a single member of the faculty, Mr. F. L. Kinley, this governing body has yearly performed invaluable services to scholarly needs and material necessities.

During the first semester, when the group was mainly interested in sports concessions and ordinary government, Richard Alesch was the leader. At the mid term balloting, Wilbur Weller was chosen to direct the project of financing the new radio proposition now under consideration. Anabel Lee, Mary Kirsten, and Glen Stover filled other official positions.

Composed of a group of senior girls chosen by their own classmates because of their high scholastic attainment and their effective leadership, the Big Sister organization has effected much among the girls of the school.

The organization functions under the guidance of Miss Kiefer, dean of girls, who considers them her chief assistants in seeing to the welfare of the girls of the school.

The chief purpose of the Big Sisters is to act as leaders of the girls who have come into the school for the first time. They pass on to the Little Sisters the traditions and ideals of the school and help them to adjust themselves to the school with the greatest amount of benefit and satisfaction.

The special projects of the group have been the leading of discussions in Charm School, the participation in giving Miss Kiefer help in her office, the sponsoring of the Girls' Mixer, a Farmer and Farmerette party.

The Campfire organization, the purpose of which is to develop happy, broadminded, useful citizens by habit forming activities in the home, in school, in church, and in the out-of-doors, is one of the most active in the school.

This international organization, found in twelve different countries, is represented in this school by four groups: Tru-Lo-He, A-na-ki-sin, Tawasi, and Patruchee.

The program, which is practically the same for all groups, has been partly devoted to the National Birthday Project. The most important thing derived from this project is the establishment of international friendship and the knowledge of what Campfire is doing for the girls in foreign lands. Various social activities have been held, and at Thanksgiving and Christmas, baskets were sent to the needy.

The sponsors of the Campfire girls are Mrs. Dale Hutson, Mrs. Frost, Miss Norma Collingwood, Miss Florence Strother, and Miss Florence Agner.

With the supervisory guidance of Mr. R. G. Alexander, various experiments and demonstrations have been executed. In addition to viewing scientific films at open meetings, the members have conducted expeditions to several local plants, especially the Beet Sugar Factory and the National Refining Company, endeavoring to become better acquainted with fundamentals of modern industries in the light of chemical knowledge.

Juniors carried the club elections for leadership with the student selection to office of the second year pupils, Richard Westfall, Virginia Swartz, and Alfred Fenstermaker. One of the most popular scientific organizations of the school, this club has accomplished helpful work since its founding in the fall of 1929.

During the year the club studied Roman elections and Greek and Roman myths. In the month of October the two-thousandth anniversary of the birth of Vergil was celebrated with the holding of an open meeting to which all students and interested citizens were invited.

Led in activities by its sponsor, Miss Alice Wright, and its officers, Betty Patterson, president; Ellen Hybarger, vice-president; Sara Newton, secretary; and Pauline Vandersall, treasurer, the club has well achieved its purpose in furthering classical conceptions and activities.

The purpose of the club is to acquaint its members with each other. Many phases of commercial work which are not studied in class are discussed in the club programs.

During the year several outside speakers have talked before the club. At Christmas a basket was given to the needy. One of the major projects of the club is the publication of the commercial department paper, "The Bizzy Bits." One of the social events is a large banquet which is held in the latter part of the year.

The officers of the club are Betty Tyner, president; Joe Spangler, vice-president; and Beatrice Beltz, secretary-treasurer. Miss Mae Fassett and Miss Rosa Hudnell are sponsors.

SECOND—R. Wallen, W. Kelly, K. Knight, R. Cole, R. Davis, H. Bailey
THIRD—Mr. Frack, R. Shoupe, A. Bloomingdale, D. Drake, Mr. Smith.

An institution of long standing and firm foundation is the organization developed by those interested in oratory and argumentation. Primarily the aim of the group is to further a higher interest in the art of public speaking, and secondarily to study this art to determine the factors of successful debating.

The club developed short debates on such subjects as parliamentary form of government, the chain store question, and the legal prospects of 1931 and 1932. Representatives of the group, who had attended the Findlay College debates, led discussions on the college topic of unemployment. As in other clubs, outside speakers of note were obtained for added interest and variance of program.

The debate coaches, Mr. D. D. Smith and Mr. George Frack, cooperated in the club activities with the officers, Alfred Bloomingdale, president; Robert McIntosh, vice-president; and Ralph Cole Jr., secretary-treasurer.

Le Cercle Francais has endeavored to awaken among its members a love for France, her people, and her language; to learn more of the country, its people, and customs; to perfect the spoken French of its members; and to give them amusement.

The programs consisted chiefly of story telling, a spell-down at which the winner received a small flag of France, dramatizations, and the singing of songs.

Through the efforts of its sponsor, Miss Helen Wiseley, the club observed the Christmas season with an appropriate program, in which exchange of gifts was held. During the second semester an annual party proved to be one of the most important of the year's social activities.

The club offices of president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, chorister, and pianist were held by Alfred Bloomingdale, Hulda Doyle, Lois Stringfellow, Elwood Amsler, Richard Heck, and Ruth Roberts. Glen Love was formerly vice-president.

The Girl Reserve Organization is to the feminine members of the school what the Hi-Y is to the boys. Back of the programs and interests of this club have been the ideals of character building and unselfish service.

This year the club made up a program of various units all tending toward the goal of finer intellectual and spiritual individuality. It is the sincere hope of the members and sponsors that these girls acquainted with this national organization will extend their learnings to other non-members.

Faculty directors who have labored yearly for the furthering of this fine club are Miss Helen Wiseley, Miss Glendora Mills, and Miss Lena Kiefer. The students who head the monthly labors for the group are Mary Kirsten, president; Evelyn Diehlman, vice-president; Lois Stringfellow, secretary; and Violet Simendinger, treasurer.

GREEK CLASS

FIRST—B. Hodge, V. Swartz, R. Maxwell, M. Kresser, E. Hybarger, A. Hendershot.

SECOND—M. Chapman, K. McDonald, Miss Wright, R. Westfall, M. McCullough, M. Thomas.

In response to the encouragement of many junior and senior students of the Classics, a new organization, a Greek class, has been formed. This novel institution, unlike the other clubs begun in our school, has not yet organized its members into a regular club but prefers to go about its studies without student officers under the sole guidance of Miss Alice Wright, teacher of the Latin tongue.

All students who are interested sincerely in obtaining a thorough background for further study of the language have gathered together to compose this group. In its first lesson, the class, which meets three times each month, dealt with the learning of the Greek alphabet, and later related Greek stories which probably will be included in a first year college course. As its success becomes more certain, the class will study more minutely any phase of the Greek language which is suitable for a preliminary knowledge of the tongue.

Surely such an idea, attempted for the first time among our language students, should benefit those expecting to continue their studies of the Grecian civilization. This same process, applied to other subjects contained in a college curriculum, forecasts a helpful aid to high school pupils intending to enter some institution of further learning after they complete their present work.

SENIOR HI - Y

FIRST—P. Mitchell, F. Chapman, R. Phillips, F. Haley, J. Snyder, R. Kwis.
SECOND—R. Thompson, W. Weller, E. Amsler, R. Schwab, T. Bayless, R. Heck
THIRD—J. Spangler, R. Alesch, Mr. Kilgore, C. Wiseley, M. Briggs, G. Fenimore.
FOURTH—G. Stough, J. Poole, R. Fisher, P. Miller, R. Hendricks, E. Smith.
FIFTH—C. Lafferty, C. Maurer, S. Stuntz.

For many years of enthusiastic work the Senior Hi-Y has faithfully performed its aim, "to create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character."

With such an object to achieve this organization has held many interesting discussions, several of which centered chiefly on the topic of girl companionship. With a willing display of energy characteristic of the group, the boys made possible the presentation of the usual Pre-Thanksgiving Services conducted in the high school auditorium, the novel Hi-Y and Big Sister banquet, the Alumni party, and the Mother and Son banquet. Representatives attended the Northwestern District Conference at Van Wert and the State Hi-Y Congress at Columbus.

Earnestly directed toward the fulfilment of its every purpose with the aid of Mr. W. A. Kilgore, faculty leader, and the efforts of its officers, Robert Schwab, president; Elwood Amsler, vice-president; Francis Chapman, secretary-treasurer; Russell Hendricks and Stephen Stuntz, council members, this fraternal organization has conscientiously ended a profitable year.

JUNIOR HI - Y

FIRST—G. Ashwill, W. Kelly, A. Fenstermaker, G. Arnold, W. Fishell.

SECOND—W. Hillshafer, C. Edgington, K. Knight, N. Copeland.

THIRD—W. Wittenmyer, G. Johnston, C. Brandman.

FOURTH—G. Jelley, K. Karg, G. Gray, M. Jeffery.

The Junior Hi-Y Club, a division of that fraternity originated in the older senior club, holds aims and ambitions identical to those ideals and purposes of the more advanced group. Severed several years ago from the organization of the upper-classmen, this enthusiastic band of boys has furthered its own purposes and has incorporated into its functions those duties of the senior club.

The members, with the aid of Mr. Cecil Robbins, the club sponsor, selected for the year a well balanced program, which consisted of Bible discussions, round tables, talks by outside speakers, industrial trips, a retreat, and several banquets. This club cooperated with the Senior Hi-Y boys in the induction of the sophomore members, and was also represented in the Northwestern District Conference at Van Wert and in the state meeting at Columbus.

The president, George Gray, with the other officers, Richard Westfall, vice-president; George Arnold, secretary; and Alfred Fenstermaker, treasurer; organized and directed the various programs and enterprises for the year.

FOURTH—R. Corbin, H. Bailey, D. Drake, R. Arnold, R. Jones, J. Russell, R. Child, D. Dennis.

For the first few months of the school year, this junior chapter of the larger division of the Hi-Y was led, as in years before, by Mr. Paul Barrett. Following the change of Y Secretaries, Mr. Roy L. Mosshart assumed the leadership of the boys.

The group of underclassmen decided upon no radical change of program, and the aims of the Senior Hi-Y were carried out to as great a degree as possible. At the meetings various members gave discussions of vital questions, centered mainly upon the subject of life problems. At intervals the program was varied by other speeches, including Mr. Roger Arnold's talk on world brotherhood and Mr. C. A. Robbins' discussion at the yearly Father and Son Banquet. The social side included hike and bean feeds. The club sent delegates to the state meeting at Columbus and the sectional conference at Fostoria.

The officers of the group are Glen Stover, president; Richard Davis, vice-president; Don Dennis, secretary; and John Winders, treasurer.

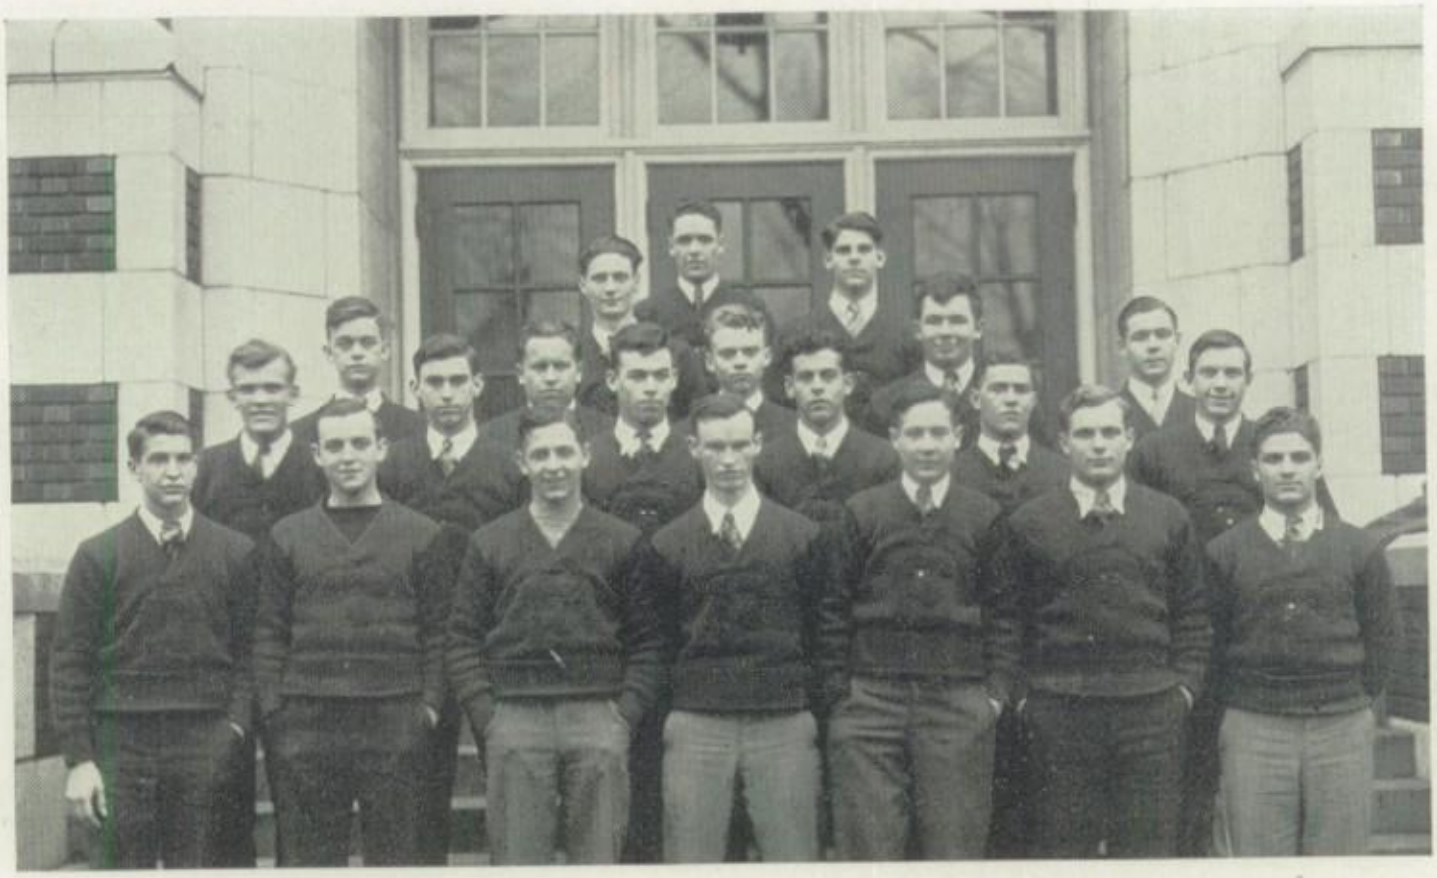
EIGHTH—T. Bayless, G. Fenimore, M. Briggs, R. Hendricks, R. Alesch, K. Karg, F. Chapman, K. Knight.

The Justamere Club is made up of those students who desire to become better acquainted with the three arts, literature, music, and painting, and to promote literary activities in the school. At the meetings different members gave reviews of modern literature and studies of the lives of various authors. The main social function of the club is the yearly banquet held at the time of initiation of new members.

The officers of the organization were Richard Alesch, Sara Newton, Helen King, Max Briggs, Lois Stringfellow, and Helen Schwyn. Miss Mildred Dietsch and Miss Ruth Finton were faculty sponsors.

LETTER "F" CLUB



FIRST—F. Sausser, E. Folk, W. Ex, E. Folk, P. Mitchell, M. Jeffery, C. Brandman.

SECOND—R. Fisher, R. Hendricks, R. Beltz, H. Lucas, P. Miles, E. Ladd.

THIRD—J. Poole, A. Routzon, M. Briggs, J. Child, J. Riley.

FOURTH—H. Simpson, C. Lafferty, J. Spangler.

Boys who have gained major letters in various sports compose this athletic group, the only club of the school founded solely upon standards of athletics. An endeavor is made by the members to afford a means of fellowship among the boys, to uphold and promote fine sportsmanship, and to glorify the honor of the letter "F."

In the bi-weekly meetings, the boys pursued a program for the year consisting of several discussions and talks given by outside speakers, who gave accounts of their experiences in sports. This organization promoted a number of our pep meetings, and through its labor a father and mother's day was held during one of the season's football games.

Guided by Coach Knode, the leaders, Edward Folk, Merlin Jeffery, and Charles Brandman, directed a course of interesting events throughout the year. One of the more rigid and exacting performances was the annual initiation of new members, a stiff affair for the younger boys.

RADIO CLUB

FIRST—R. Bellinger, M. Reamsnyder, J. Wasbro, Wm. Stevenson.

SECOND—G. Jelley, K. Wolford, Mr. Shull, F. Weitz, J. Garrett.

THIRD—W. Hillshafer, H. Lucas, W. Beall.

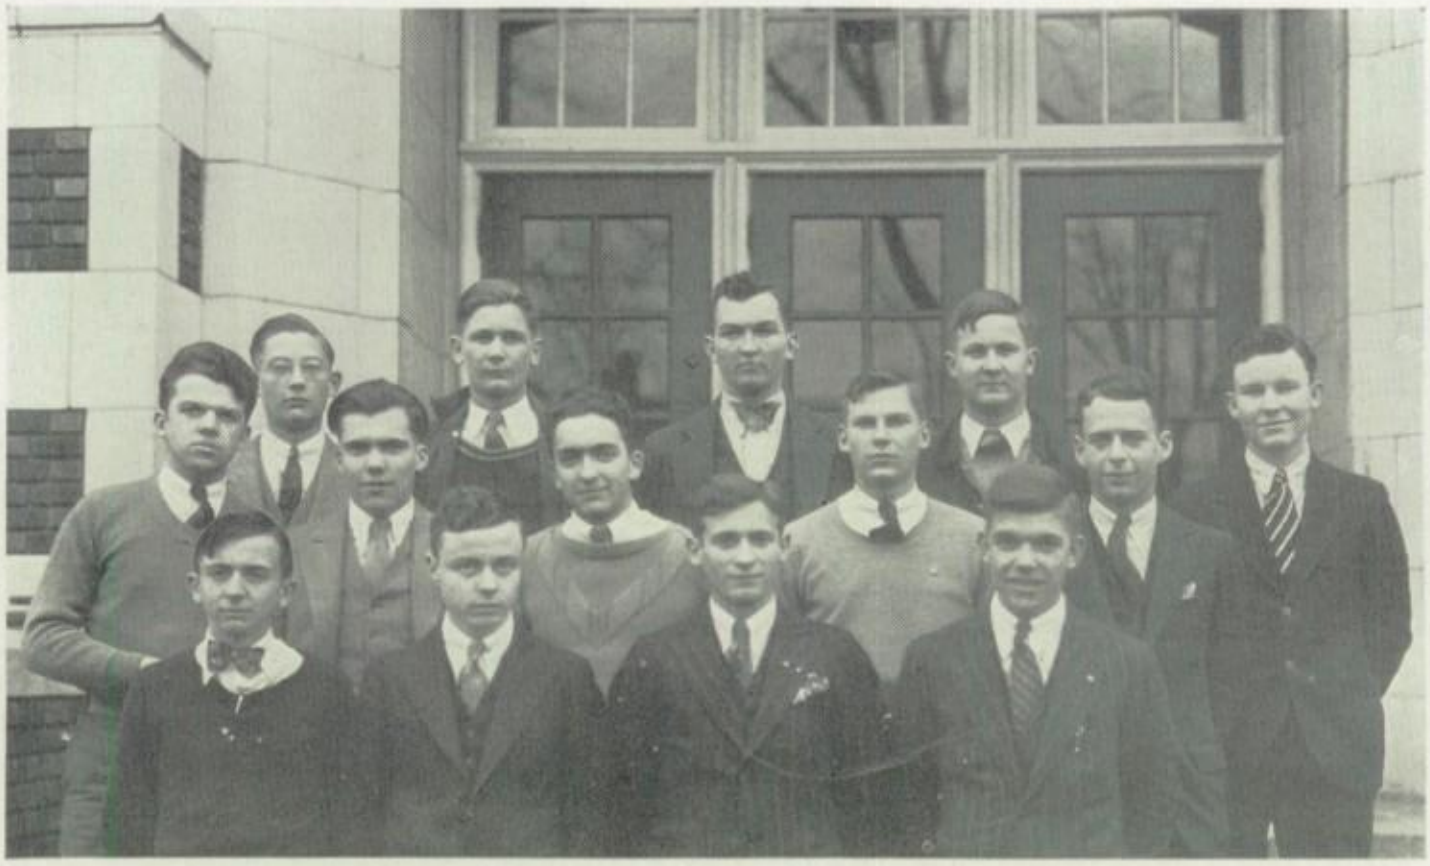
Delving deep into the scientific fundamentals of one of our most essential modern conveniences, those composing the Radio Club have striven to study the wonders of radio and to become good operators.

This year the club has developed code practice and has discussed short wave radio, television, transmitters, tubes, and receivers. These studies were intensified with the showing of assistant films.

Several scientifically inclined students have derived valuable sending and receiving practice through their privately owned sets. Call letters of the club's station are W8ARM, and three licensed amateurs are Harlow Lucas, W8QQ, William Beall, W8BLW, and Merle Reamsnyder, W8CXN. With the encouragement of Mr. Fremont Shull more of the boys are taking interest in amateur broadcasting, for those possessing licenses gain great practical enjoyment from their sets.

Those pupils who fill executive positions are Harlow Lucas, president; Charles Mitchell, vice-president; Gerald Jelley, secretary; and Merle Reamsnyder, treasurer.

SCIENCE CLUB



FIRST—R. Phillips, W. Black, H. Arras, L. Haugh.
SECOND—S. Stuntz, R. Schwab, G. Fenimore, P. Miller, A. Bloomingdale.
THIRD—W. Weller, R. Alesch, R. Shoupe, R. Joseph, G. Launder.

An outgrowth of the original Chemistry Club of the previous year, this newly formed organization is composed of senior members not only interested in the chemical theories and methods but also in the studies of other sciences. Its definite aim is to give the student members opportunities to perform instructive experiments before the club, to conduct researches, and to create a deeper interest in science.

As each member was required to participate in various projects during the year, the organization witnessed a great variety of interesting experiments skillfully performed by the amateur scientists. In an effort to universally interest the school in scientific pursuits, the club often held open meetings at which films pertaining to common phases of science were displayed.

Mr. R. G. Alexander has meritoriously led this group through two semesters of difficult experimenting. The leaders chosen by the club members were Wilbur Weller, president; Glen Love, vice-president; and Stephen Stuntz, secretary-treasurer.

SPANISH CLUB

FIRST—L. Copeland, M. Ross, H. Gohlke, V. Fry, E. Roberts, R. Phillips.

SECOND—R. Magoon, H. Arras, K. Roller, F. Chapman, L. Haugh, M. George, M. Maurer.

THIRD—C. Maurer, G. Coon, L. Morrison, R. Joseph, D. Farrell, F. McCoy.

Pursuing the identical aims of the other organizations interested in foreign tongues, the purpose of El Circulo Castellano is to afford those students concerned with Spanish a more conclusive understanding of the language itself, the customs, and the literature of Spain.

Miss Mable Shilling, the instructor of the language, has intensified her ability as Spanish teacher by her intimate knowledge of the land, the peoples, and their habits. These qualities have aided her in leading the organization founded for the promoting of Spanish interest.

The leaders of the group are Robert Joseph, president; Gerald Coon, vice-president; Francis Chapman, secretary; and Frank McCoy, treasurer.

In the course of the year discussions and informal talks were based upon the life and literary works of different Spanish authors. In addition, much enjoyment has been added to the program of the club by singing Spanish songs and hymns and by holding various contests and games.

SIXTH—R. Reese, M. Zeigler, Miss Switzer, N. Tarbox, T. Bayless, J. Poole, D. LaRowe, A. Wolfe, C. Hendricks.

The object of the Stage Craft Club is to acquaint its members with the theory of stage craft, scenery, and lighting, and to give them an opportunity to manage, direct, and stage a play. The organization studied biographies of actors and actresses and discussed enunciation and dramatization.

At the Christmas season the members carried out the dramatization, costuming, and scenery of the pageant, "Why the Chimes Rang." At various times during the year this club has aided the school in constructing scenery for such stage productions as the opera and class plays.

The club had for sponsor Miss Ruth Switzer, and its officers were: Betty Tyner, president; James Poole, vice-president; and Mona McDowell, secretary-treasurer.

TRAVEL CLUB

FIRST—S. Dantico, R. Gordon, D. Hunt, D. Hauman, R. Lowe, H. Love.

SECOND—H. Henning, R. Kutz, P. Doty, A. Holman, M. Lewis.

THIRD—M. LaFountaine, C. Davis, M. George, R. Magoon, Miss Kiefer, M. Norris.

The Travel Club, an organization of rather recent beginning in this school, is composed of those students who wish to become better and more intimately acquainted with the various parts of the world, who desire to receive a helpful background for future travel, and who want to develop their interests in the field of travel as an avocation. In the search for geographical and historical information concerning foreign countries Miss Lena Kiefer served as faculty advisor for the group.

This year the club has made a thorough study of Switzerland, its remarkable geographical features, its people, industries, resources, famous men, and history. The League of Nations, much discussed within our country, offered a topic of vital interest to the club members.

Several open meetings have been held at which Mrs. J. V. Hartman talked on her experiences with the people of Switzerland, Miss Kiefer on the "Jungfraujock," Miss Helen Barnes on the League of Nations, and Miss Maryette Lum on her experiences in the Bridgmon Academy at Peiping, China.

Student officers of this club were Helen Love, president; Delores Hauman, vice-president; Mary Norris, secretary; Malcolm George, treasurer; and Helen Hunt, critic.

SUCCESS

We're born to live, to love, to die. And yet
How oft we sit and watch in idleness
The great man surge with fame. Do we forget
That man is great ere he learns to finesse?
Our skill lies in ourselves, and we depend
On neither luck nor chance to pave the way
To ultimate success. For, to pretend
Is but the crime that sinners oft portray.
So why should we deny our powers to win?
Why do we fear the jeers of mocking throngs?
The conquering prize is won by what has been Hard years of strife, of work, and thoughts gone wrong.
And yet the hero of it all is he
Who perseveres; who solves the mystery.

—Clara Wittkofski.

DREAMS

A king am I upon a throne
In the land of make believe;
Of royal subjects have I none
But yet my dreams perceive
A thousand men
To go just when
I give them will or leave.

A royal palace I possess
Of architecture grand
Its marble halls and columns tall
Not made by human hand
Have sheltered long
From ill and wrong
The good of every land.

When dreams for me have ceased to earn
The passage of the way
I hope that I one wish might have
Unto the closing day,
My dreams to be
Reality
For ever and for aye.

—Dorothy Traxler.

Choosing vocal numbers from a repertoire consisting of the works of some of the most noted composers and of the compositions of the all-state chorus selection, the A Capella Choir presented worthwhile concerts in neighboring towns and also entertained local audiences with home presentations. With the skillful musical direction of Mr. Wendell Sanderson, the group of singers progressed remarkably in vocal and concert ability during this, the third year since the organization of the choir.

This musical organization merits the utmost student appreciation for its continuously good presentations during the weekly religious services conducted throughout the year. Since its origin three years ago the group has steadily grown and is constantly reaching new goals of musical attainment.

OPERA

FIRST—F. Hardy, R. Smith, D. Sprow, D. Traxler, M. Windle, L. Wolfe, E. Hybarger, A. Hendershot, E. Fairbanks, Mr. Sanderson.

THIRD—R. Ulrich, D. Arnold, E. Gohlke, D. Taylor, J. Long, H. Severns, E. Huffman.

FOURTH—F. Bayse, I. Cavins, E. Collins, R. Heistand, R. Moses, H. King, E. Cope, M. Davis, K. Saul, E. Folk, E. Ladd.

SIXTH—P. Miller, R. Loveridge, C. Wiseley, N. Franks, R. Schwab, R. Heck, C. Maurer, C. Mitchell.

SEVENTH—G Gray, G. Stough, T. Bayless, R. Wallen, R. Kwis, F. Weitz, P. Huffman, E. Adams.

In the handling of the comic opera, "The Marriage of Nannette," by Agnes Emelie Peterson and Louis Woodson Curtis, the musical students this year were able to rise to the interpretation of a presentation more difficult than those of previous years. Mr. Wendell Sanderson, assisted by Miss Ruth Finton, Miss Geneva Bushey, and Mr. Earl Shisler, directed this humorous work, a light French play.

The cast included Dorothy Traxler, Gerald Fenimore, Ned Franks, Dorothy Sprow, Frances Hardy, James Ebersole, Helen King, Richard Wallen, Robert Kwis, Ione Longworth, Richard Loveridge, Mary Robinson, Mary Windle, Richard Heck, Carl Maurer, Charles Mitchell, Karl Karg, Lucille Wolfe, Robert Schwab, Edward Folk, Charles Wiseley, and John Snyder.

Added faculty assistance came from Mr. W. A. Kilgore, Mr. Loren Slager, and Misses Estella Anstaett, Mae Fassett, Mable Shilling, and Ruth Switzer. Student managers were Merle Reamsnyder, business manager; and Robert Blosser, William Duttweiler, Raymond Moses, and Merlin Jeffery, stage managers. The chorus was drawn from all music classes. Pianists were Ruth Roberts and Ellen Hybarger.

SENIOR PLAY

FIRST—H. King, B. Patterson, E. Carr, E. Cope, M. Hall, Miss West.

SECOND—R. Heck, J. Snyder, S. Stuntz, R. Kwis, A. Bloomingdale.

Deviating from the standard tradition that the Senior Class interpret a serious drama, the Class of '31 presented on May 15 and 16 a humorous play, "Clarence," a typical comedy from the pen of Booth Tarkington. Miss Sylvia West, for many years the skillful director of class plays, also directed this year's production. Alfred Bloomingdale carried the masculine lead as Clarence, a young scientist in the guise of a World War veteran. Although a governess by trade, Helen King in the role of Violet Pinney managed to keep the male members of the cast in quite a whirl during the play. Robert Kwis and Betty Patterson took the parts of brother Bobby and sister Cora, young and rather lively members of the Wheeler family.

Stephen Stuntz, business man Wheeler in the drama, skillfully personified the modern world of trade. His often jealous wife was played by Edith Cope, stepmother of Cora and Bobby. More of the business realm was represented by Mary Hall, the efficient secretary of Mr. Wheeler.

In the part of the Irish maid, Della, Elinor Carr introduced quite a lot of breezy humor. Richard Heck played Hubert Stem, the lover of Cora, while John Snyder portrayed Dinwiddie, the dignified family butler.

Mr. Dale Hutson directed the property committee composed of Mary Kirsten, chairman, Martha Courtney, Jean Burket, and Richard Alesch. In the costuming Miss Helen Wiseley and Miss Rosa Hudnell aided a committee comprising Lois Stringfellow, chairman, Hulda Doyle, Mary Louise Winders, Dorothy Traxler, and Robert Joseph. George Stough was business manager, and Robert Schwab took care of the scenery. Faculty stage managers were Mr. R. G. Alexander and Mr. Paul Hochstettler.

JUNIOR PLAY

FIRST—A. Moran, R. Maxwell, P. Johnson, R. George, M. Wickham.

SECOND—E. Cole, K. Knight, G. Gray, W. Foster, Mr. Humphrey.

The Junior Class produced a dramatic achievement in the success of Philip Barry's comedy, "The Youngest," enacted in the auditorium on January 29 and 30, 1931. With many comical allusions the play centered around the typical home life of a family who were constantly endeavoring to take the responsibility of shaping the destiny of the youngest son. After several futile attempts the family surrenders the project, thereby bringing a decided victory to "the youngest."

To Mr. W. D. Humphrey goes praise for his patient efforts in the direction of the drama. Appreciation is due Miss Ruth Finton, Miss Ruth Switzer, Miss Mildred Dietsch, and Mr. F. A. Shull, faculty assistants who furnished properties, costumes, scenery, and lighting effects.

Ed. Cole carried the humorous burden of the production with his lead of "the youngest," Richard Winslow, abused son of the elderly Mrs. Winslow, whose individuality was interpreted by Pauline Johnson.

The apex of sarcasm was reached by Ruth Ellen George, the Mrs. Augusta Winslow Martin, unhappily matched with a vacillating attorney, Allen Martin, dramatically portrayed by George Gray.

Constantly quarreling with each other, Ruthanna Maxwell and William Foster carried the roles of impetuous sister "Muff" and tyrannical brother William, two affectionate members of the Winslow brigade.

Anne Moran, as visiting Nancy Blake, braved the treachery of the family and rescued young Richard from his inferiority, finally emerging with the love of this grateful fellow. The role of the patient maid was developed by Martha Wickham.

The business manager was Karl Karg, and stage manipulations were operated by Robert Blosser, Paul Butler, and Cyril Brink.

BAND

FIRST—C. Crippen, R. Bell, B. Neibel, H. Bishop, E. Fenimore, F. Campbell, D. Altman, V. Meeks, J. Zaenglein, M. Mellott.

SECOND—H. Shuch, C. Price, G. Dysinger, R. Wetherald, R. Biery, F. Bryan, C. Porter, J. Hendershot, S. Moyer, E. Moyer.

THIRD—M. Maurer, E. Jacqua, W. Wittenmyer, D. Misamore, H. Bond, J. Van Dorn, D. LaRowe, G. Kestor, J. Gohlke.

FOURTH—R. Wineland, J. Price, R. Bunje, G. Jelley, E. Shisler, R. Williams, M. Wagner, J. Waggoner, R. Westfall.

Requiring continuous practice and constant service from its members, our high school band fills one of the most necessary places of the school life and develops the musical appreciation of the students. This year in particular Mr. Earl Shisler and his players have labored constantly toward the purchase of new uniforms, greatly needed by the group.

With this as an aim the band presented its annual concert in the middle of February and later attended the yearly festival of similiar organizations from neighboring cities held this season at Upper Sandusky. At the football games and basketball contests the group has aroused student enthusiasm.

Steadily through the years this organization has grown and improved in ability. It is difficult to surpass the readiness of service and the ever-present constancy of such a group of musicians. Various graduates from this institution have carried their talents on into musical activities outside the school.

ORCHESTRA

FIRST—E. Fenimore, L. McGriff, C. Moyer, R. Bogart, W. Chapman, J. Brown.
SECOND—C. Elliott, D. Gohlke, R. Biery, E. Hybarger, R. Herbst, E. Moyer.
THIRD—L. Linsley, E. Jacqua, D. Misamore, J. Ebersole, J. Garrett, L. Neumann.
FOURTH—W. Wittenmyer, Mr. Shisler, S. Moyer.

Conscientiously bound to the insistent duties and to the musical ideals present in school life, this organization has risen in rank and esteem equal to the praise given the band. When certain activities of the school demanded stricter practice and more lengthy periods of rehearsal, our orchestra was untiring in devotion to its aims of producing good music whenever occasions arose at which the group was able to afford instrumental music.

Led in their musical activities by that skillful director, Mr. Earl Shisler, the players of the orchestra have instrumentally accompanied the Junior and Senior dramatic presentations. The group also played at the various debates conducted in our local auditorium. A vital part of the annual operetta, this division of the music department added necessary assistance to the success of the comic opera.

It is the hope of the school that such a worthy organization prosper and steadily grow that its members may be able to constantly raise the musical standards of educational life.

AFFIRMATIVE DEBATE TEAM

FIRST—M. Foster, H. Schwyn, M. Biery.
SECOND— R. Shoupe, Mr. Frack.

Few of those of last year so skilled in argumentation were left until this season to maintain the teams and assist any newcomers in the art of debating; nevertheless, the coaches, Mr. D. D. Smith and Mr. George Frack, were able to select and train a fine group of debaters. Those composing the affirmative team, victorious in two debates out of three, were Helen Schwyn, Mary Ellen Biery, and Richard Shoupe, with Margaret Foster as alternate.

This year this squad upheld the affirmative side of the question: Resolved, That the chains are detrimental to the best interests of the United States public.

The opening debate took place on the night of January 16, when our affirmative team opposed the negative of Fostoria and won the decision of the adjudicator. Later, on January 23, this same team went to meet the opposition of Lima and lost to that city. At the climax of the season, these boys and girls gained the victory from Hicksville in the contest held in the high school auditorium.

Next year we hope to interest more students in the work of debate, for surely no activity of the school is more beneficial directly to the participant than is debating. A greater interest among the entire school will do much to promote the standards and arouse enthusiasm in this activity.

NEGATIVE DEBATE TEAM

FIRST—F. Stover, H. Doyle, M. Hall.

SECOND—Mr. Smith, R. Wallen.

Those proclaiming the negative view of the interesting and vital topic of debate chosen for this season were Hulda Doyle, Fay Stover, and Richard Wallen, with Mary Hall as alternate. Coaches D. D. Smith and George Frack directed the research efforts of these debaters and trained them into a forceful and persuasive team capable of triumphing over serious odds.

At the beginning of the debate season on January 16 this negative group opposed Bluffton's team at that town and returned without the victorious decision. This team carried the award at the second dual held against the Ada debaters on January 23. The final contest of January 31 resulted in a victory for Findlay because of the cancellation of the meet by the Defiance team, who forfeited the decision to us.

Probably no activity in the school requires such tedious exertion and such relentless labor as debating does. It is certain that no other work, so dependent upon good backers and an interested audience, receives less praise and less approval from the students. The gain attained by the detailed research work and the valuable practice in oratory should repay these students for their efforts spent in the hours of work.

When the yearly season of Noel time brings back quickening memories of the most noble story that mankind has ever passed from mouth to mouth, no soul should be left untouched by some beautiful tale of the first Christmas. In an endeavor to portray the sublimity of this wondrous story, the Stage Craft Club skillfully directed and enacted Elizabeth McFadden's fine play, "Why the Chimes Rang."

The able cast, drawn from the ranks of the club, follows: Halger, Robert Lee; Steen, Adele Pratt; Old Woman, Lucille Wolfe; Uncle Bertel, Ned Franks; Priest, Richard Alesch; King, Theodore Bayless; Beautiful Woman, Violet Simendinger; Scholar, Tony Wolfe; First Courier, Richard Davis; Second Courier, Paul Mitchell; Young Girl, Mary Bonham; Angel, Dorothy Traxler.

Miss Ruth Switzer, faculty director of the organization, achieved the success of the dramatic parts of the play, while Mr. Dale Hutson added his assistance with the organ accompaniment. Appropriate costumes were designed under the supervision of Miss Estella Anstaett. Sincere gratitude, insufficient though it is in this mere mention, is extended to the assisting group of singers drawn from the chapel choir and to the members of the club itself, who managed the lighting effects, scenery, and costumes.

EISTEDDFOD

FIRST—G. Fenimore, R. Maxwell, F. Hardy, M. Robinson, M. Windle, L. Wolfe, M. Sparks, S Bowman, L. Adams, M. Kocher, D. Traxler.

SECOND—J. Snyder, L. Wilkins, M. Bonham, E. Huffman, E. Gohlke, D. Arnold, M. Ewers, E. Carr, R. Heistand, B. Tyner, C. Jacobs, E. Hybarger.

THIRD—R. Wallen, E. Collins, H. King, P. Claypoole, L. Reimund, E. Cope, R. Caldwell, R. Roberts, D. Sprow, E. Smith, H. Severns, F. Bayse.

FOURTH—F. Weitz, I. Cavins, L. Simmons, H. Tinsman, M. Davis, G. Cooper, M. Norris, R. Schwab, G. Gray.

FIFTH—G. Stough, E. Adams, D. Summers, P. Huffman, R. Heck, C. Wiseley, K. Karg, C. Maurer, R. Kwis, J. Ebersole.

When one school has for nine years received first honors in the District High School Eisteddfod, it is a difficulty to abandon this established tradition and to take third place. Such a situation, occurring on April 24, 1931, when Findlay trailed the winner, Defiance, and the runner-up, Marion, must of necessity stimulate an energetic effort toward victory next year.

With the direction of Mr. Wendell Sanderson and Miss Eugenia Guise, Findlay won first place in the mixed quartet, composed of Evelyn Collins, Corrine Jacobs, Emory Adams, and Robert Clapper, and in the alto solo, sung by Corrine Jacobs. We were also given second place in the piano solo, played by Ruth Roberts, and in the tenor solo, sung by Emory Adams. Dorothy Traxler, Ruth Roberts, Helen King, and Ruthanna Maxwell accompanied our singers.

Information

A stimulating element of pure sportsmanship is the whole-hearted fraternal feeling of equality produced by the virile exertion of physical power. In the finest of athletes a remarkable use of muscular energy coincides with the well-timed functions of bodily co-ordination. To excel in the world of sports is to have developed the human body superior in strength, lasting in endurance, and responsive in control. In a liberal feeling of international competition in athletic trials, we tear down our finite national bounds and exalt with the world in the universal emulation of sports.

COACHES

ROBERT KNODE—Athletic Coach

Coach Knode, in the three years that he has spent with our athletic work, has achieved remarkable success both in football and in basketball. His quiet, clear-thinking personality has been the force that has driven through many critical crises and has produced glorified victory and honorable defeat for our teams. It is with regret that we bid him farewell as he withdraws as head of the athletic department at the close of this school season.

GEORGE FRACK—Assistant Football Coach

One can accomplish a great deal in the training and developing of fine teamwork among boys with the hearty cheerfulness and genial sympathy that Coach Frack showed in his work with the football fellows. His friendliness and whole-hearted enthusiasm in all trying plays and practices have won him the utmost regard and the good companionship of all the boys of the football squad and also among those who participated in the inter-city track meets this spring.

PETER HITE—Assistant Football Coach

With a readiness to plunge into the hardest practice and lead his boys through the toughest of scrimmages. Coach Hite earned the enthusiastic esteem of the fellows whom he trained in the plays of the gridiron. Every member of the squad owes much to him for his enduring efforts and his friendly companionship between and during the long hours spent in practice. His force was back of many of the winning plays executed skillfully during the games of the season.

MERLIN OLIPHANT—Assistant Football Coach

Coach Oliphant was another of those jolly leaders gifted with the good-natured faculty of guiding the football squad through his broad, fun-loving powers. It was not only the smooth manner in which he performed the tasks of practice; it was also the ability of working out new plays that made his help valuable in teaching the boys perfected football. All through the several years that he has filled the position of assistant coach, Mr. Oliphant has earned praise for his labor.

MANAGERS

CECIL ROBBINS—Athletic Manager

For many years Mr. Robbins has continuously carried out his duties in arranging various programs of games with other cities and towns. He has managed contests in every division of sports played by the boys of our school. In addition to the inter-city games, he has directed the boys' intra-mural tournaments and has personally refereed many games during the entire school term. Besides furthering the major sports, he has encouraged interest in several minor games this past season.

JAMES POOLE—Football Student Manager

At every game played during the strenuous season in football, Jimmy Poole was at his post with a hearty quality of readiness for work. The position of student manager often is a duty granting little recognized praise and demanding a great amount of faithful labor. To be present at each practice and at each game to assist with the squad equipment and endless necessities requires quite a lot of tiresome service. In his work Jimmy has been ever on the job and eager to assist with his share of the work.

PAUL MITCHELL—Football Student Manager

One quickly recalls the little red cap perched on the top of Paul's head weaving to and fro over the football field, as its loyal owner punctually performed his tasks as manager assisting the football players. Paul equaled the energy shown by his pal, Jimmy, in his persistent services at the practices last fall. The cheerful and tireless efforts that each of these boys displayed gain for them genuine appreciation of the student fans and the football squad.

JOHN McMANNESS—Basketball Student Manager

John followed our basketball teams to each battle that our fellows played in the gymnasium of our opponents. Tedious tasks and trying demands on the time and energy of the student manager were always answered by John's good-natured services. He was the sole helper to the fellows on the basketball squad, and he has performed swiftly and thoroughly each minute requisite of his position, no matter how difficult and monotonous the work has been.

FOOTBALL

FIRST—G. Leatherman, J. McManness, F. Folk, G. Arnold, W. Leach, R. Boren, F. Sausser, C. Hendricks, F. Holliger, P. Butler, G. Hathaway, C. Mitchell, G. Stover.

SECOND—J. Riley, K. Haugh, E. Ladd, J. Child, W. Ex, M. Jeffery, R. Beltz, C. Brandman, P. Miles, A. Routzon, C. Lafferty, R. Hendricks, H. Lucas, R. Fisher.

THIRD—Mr. Frack, Mr. Hite, C. Edgington, R. Johns, T. Linger, L. Patterson, R. Stanfield, H. Iliff, F. Whipple, H. Simpson, R. Child, J. Riley, Mr. Knode.

Coach Knode had several of the former year's letter men to train for gridiron activities last fall. At the primary turnout many hopeful fellows reported for practice, giving our mentor a powerful squad from which to select his players. As the season progressed more ambitious young men donned football outfits.

Before the boys played their first game, they had developed a remarkable team and proved conclusively to be an exceptional group of athletes before the season grew old. Everyone admired the spirit of the team in its two marring encounters as greatly as they did in its victories.

The 1930 gridders were the best Findlay has had in several years, and the brilliant record established by them marks the height of Mr. Knode's first three years as Findlay's athletic derector.

At the conclusion of the season's schedule the Blue and Gold had won nine of its eleven encounters, lost one contest by a one-point margin and held another to a tie.

Enthusiasm, good fellowship, and sportsmanship of the highest calibre combined with team work, speed, and accuracy, made this a truly remarkable outfit, as is attested by the following summary of the season's contests:

Findlay	86	Upper Sandusky	0
Findlay	35	Bowling Green	13
Findlay	32	Fremont	13
Findlay	7	Columbus South	8
Findlay	48	Marion Harding	0
Findlay	21	Toledo Waite	0

JAMES RILEY—Halfback

Riley started the year playing on the line, but his natural running ability helped him to gain a place in the backfield. Although he was handicapped by a leg injury, his playing at all times was of the best sort, and we are glad to know that this will not be his last year.

JAMES CHILD—Tackle

After the opposing backfield men came into contact with Jim, they always thought twice before attempting a play on his side of the line again. Because of his weight and ability, Jim was one of the foundations of the line.

FREDERICK SAUSSER—Halfback

Fred certainly could carry that ball through the opponents' line or around the end. Besides his running ability, Sausser had the knack of catching passes, and a great deal of ground was gained by his pigskin catching. Next year Fred will be one of the team's main fighters.

CHARLES BRANDMAN—(Captain)—Quarterback

Our stocky leader was able to stop anyone, and a player who could successfully elude "Chuck" would have been a marvel indeed. Our school owes a very successful football season to the quick thinking of "the little Napoleon."

RICHARD BELTZ—Halfback

With his dazzling running, goal kicking, and deceptive passing, Dick, the main scorer of the team, dismayed his opponents. His end runs also netted touchdowns, while his long sweeps around end were features of nearly every game.

FOOTBALL

ARTHUR ROUTZON—Guard

"Art" played his position as though his very life was staked upon the success of his every effort. The opposing backs were always wary of his strong and swift playing, which very often neutralized their best efforts.

PAUL MILES—Fullback

"Plowboy" was always called upon when a few yards were needed. He generally made the required distance and a little more. Besides being a good plunger, he was a fine tackler and backed up the line with powerful force.

CLAIR LAFFERTY—Tackle

In the thick of the fight Lafferty was always to be found, and many of the opposing teams' plays that had an unpleasant appearance were quickly broken up by Lafferty. Through his encouragement, the team was bolstered and strengthened many times when the going was rough.

KENNETH HOUGH—End

Last year Kenneth was occupied in filling his place at tackle, but this year his steady playing and faithful determination have awarded him a place as end. He was still able to skillfully resume his position of tackle whenever called upon.

RUSSELL HENDRICKS—End

"Russ" was one of the mainstays of the team. He is of the type of player to meet the most exacting demands of any coach. His pass catching was a great thrill producer, and through them he scored several touchdowns.

FOOTBALL

WADE EX—Guard

Wade, always to be depended upon, stopped many line plays, and, although he was not a flashy player, he was always where he was needed. His fine and steady type of playing served as a strengthening force for the entire team in moments of a crisis.

MERLIN JEFFERY—Center

Merlin played a wonderful game as center. He suffered an injury to his hand in an early game, but his nerve and enthusiasm caused him to play his position very creditably. He seemed to delight in breaking up passes for the opposing team.

HARLOW LUCAS—Tackle

For two years Lucas has been working earnestly and striving continuously for the team with such zeal that he should be commended for his faithfulness. Opponents not uncommonly went down under "Radio's" determined grasp. His loyalty to the other members of the squad is a fine example of true fidelity.

RAYMOND FISHER—Center

"Gus," filling the capacity of center position well, often had a try at fullback playing. We are sorry to see him leaving us this year, as the squad will miss his fine all-round tactics.

EDWARD LADD—End

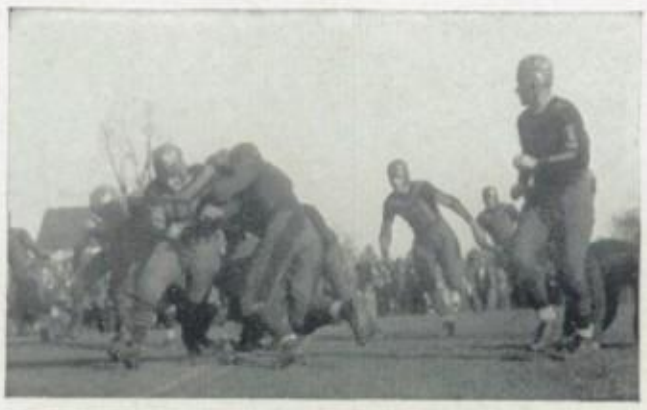
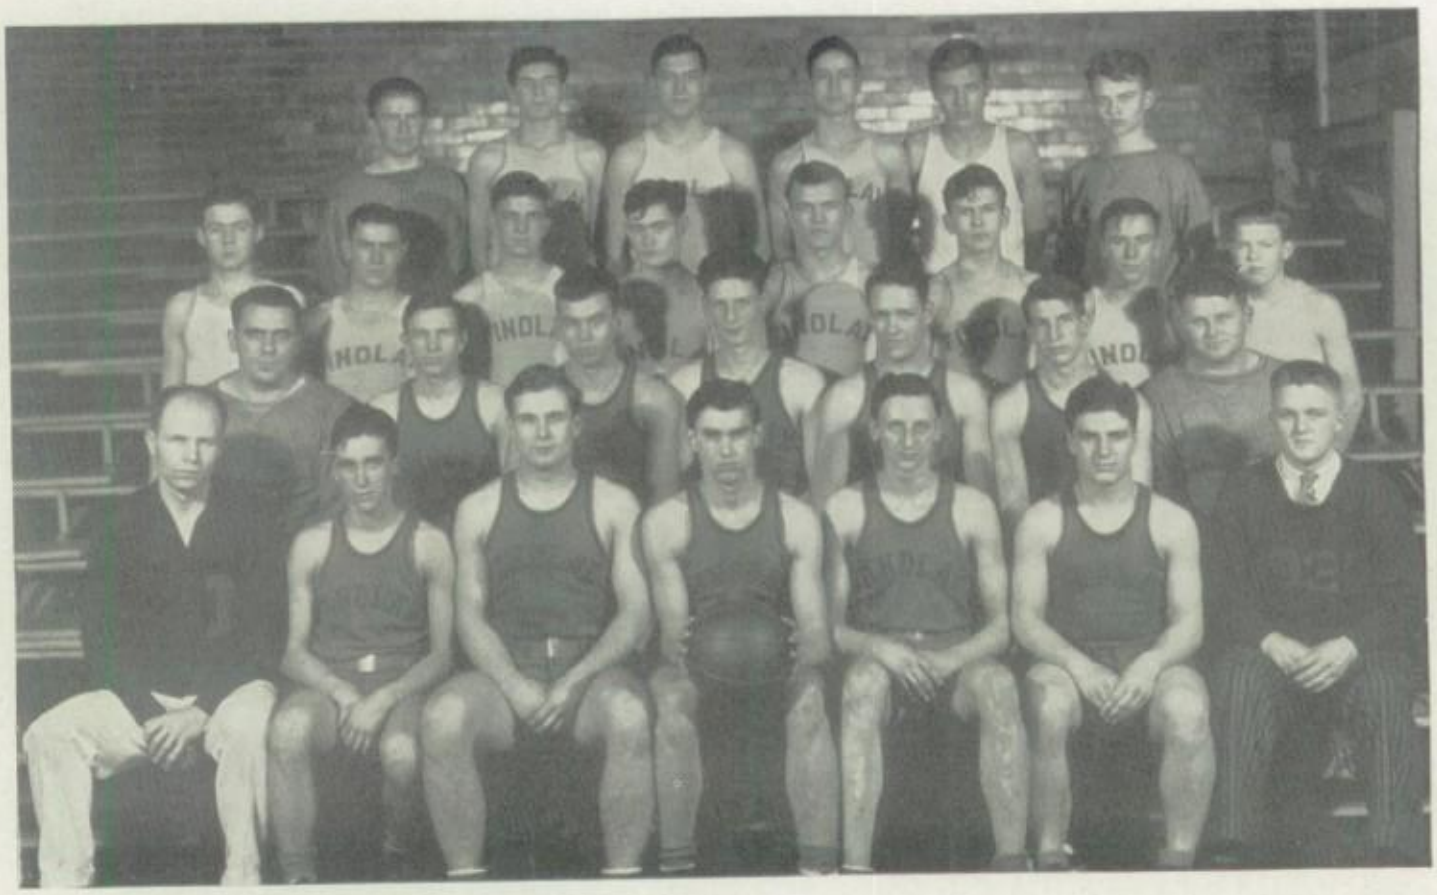
In his position as end, Ladd continually performed his allotted task with great faithfulness and steady skill. Ed's cheerfulness and genial good humor, as well as his experience in football, were attributes to the team.



BASKETBALL



FIRST—Mr. Knode, G. Stover, M. Jeffery, R. Hendricks, F. Barger, C. Brandman, J. McManness.
SECOND—Mr. Frack, E. Ladd, R. Beltz, H. Simpson, C. Lafferty, F. Sausser, Mr. Hite.
THIRD—J. Riley, P. Miles, D. Misamore, C. Kaplan, R. Fisher, G. Arnold, G. Hathaway, R. Grubb.
FOURTH—L. Copeland, W. Leach, F. Whipple, V. Cornwell, R. Boren, M. Briggs.

To be able to equal or surpass the fine record built up by the team of 1930 would have been to defend a wonderful standing in basketball. In spite of pessimistic expectations that we should never again have a team as fine as that of last year, we feel that our boys this season played with the spirit equal to the quality of previous teams developed in Findlay High. Every member on the squad possessed a steady and increasing ability. All players were almost evenly matched, so much so that it was quite difficult for Coach Knode to select a first team distinct from a second group.

The squad, composed equally of seniors, juniors, and sophomores, understood thoroughly the intimate points of the game, and each player followed faithfully the advice and improved details of playing that the coach suggested. Indomitable in spirit and rapid in execution of trick plays, the team of this season exhibited a fair and square type of playing. The following schedule and scores, showing eight victories and four defeats, gives a review of a well directed season:

Findlay	26	Tiffin	13
Findlay	19	Lima Central	28
Findlay	16	Toledo Libbey	25
Findlay	26	Bucyrus	18
Findlay	32	Fostoria	17
Findlay	28	Woodward	25
Findlay	29	Lima	17
Findlay	28	Dayton Roosevelt	18
Findlay	17	Tiffin Junior Home	35
Findlay	32	Kenton	19
Findlay	28	Fremont	27
Findlay	21	Shelby	26
Totals	302	Opponents	268

BASKETBALL

RUSSELL HENDRICKS—(Captain)—Forward

Captain "Russ" carried on the type of remarkable playing begun by his brother last year. Always in the thick of the game, he developed a speed and accuracy of basket shooting that led his followers to victories and cheered them on in defeat.

MERLIN JEFFERY—Guard

The team of next season will find a valuable defensive bulwark in Merlin. We readily recall seeing him streak across the floor on the heels of his opposing forward. He has produced a skilled and steady form of guarding.

FRANCIS BARGER—Center

"Bud" was a surprise player on this season's team; though this was his first year on the team, he has overshadowed many opponents in his swiftness and thrilling methods. We shall not soon forget his ability in getting possession of the ball at critical points of the game.

CHARLES BRANDMAN—Guard

Sufficient praise cannot be found for "Chuck's" clear thinking and coolness in the most trying of contests. He was the directing force of the team. Fans at Bucyrus wished in vain that their team could possess the "wonderful runt." His smallness of stature only augmented his powers of action.

RICHARD BELTZ—Forward

Dick brought into his basketball playing the ability so outstanding on the gridiron. No matter the situation or the time he always played with his usual steadiness and sureness. The squad of next year looks forward to his leadership and quality of playing.

BASKETBALL

GLEN STOVER—Forward

Seldom does a sophomore member of the squad climb to the heights of basketball that popular Glen has reached. Two years of future playing should produce the fastest and surest forward Findlay has known. His lack of height was an asset that aided in his fleetness of movement with the ball.

EDWARD LADD—Guard

At the beginning of the season Ed was almost unknown, but by consistent efforts and constant practice he worked his playing to a fine form. If he improves as much this next year as he has during the past season his position in basketball will greatly aid the team.

DONALD SIMPSON—Center

Don has the lofty height that should produce in him great ability as a jumping center. Tall and swift, he was able to toss balls that nearly always fell through the basket. He has a determination and calmness that is desired in a basketball player.

FREDERICK SAUSSER—Forward

Fred was another fellow who produced a type of playing greatly improved over that of previous years. Steadiness and firmness of passing are two of his attributes. His shots, straight and sure, seldom missed the mark.

CLAIR LAFFERTY—Guard

With the characteristic Irish fight in his blood, Clair more than once squirmed in and out of a tight place. His was the fine quality of being able to skillfully fill whatever position was alloted him, no matter how trying or exacting.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

FIRST—M. Winders, F. Miller, W. Cochenour, I. Cavins, V. Simendinger, R. Caldwell.

SECOND—Miss Bushey, C. Jacobs, B. Tyner, D. King, L. Powell, G. Starliper, R. Bogart.

THIRD—T. Lucas, J. Bowman, B. Beck, M. Weising, M. LaRowe, M. Brandeberry, I. Egbert.

Buoyed up by a sparkling spirit of youthful enthusiasm instilled in them by their coach, Miss Geneva Bushey, the girls have labored to produce a squad excellent in team work and swift in action. Perhaps never before have the footwork and passing of a team of girls been so nearly like the playing of a boys' team in swiftness and accuracy. When the game demanded, the girls showed the most lasting endurance of body and spirit. Quick to conceive, ready to cooperate, and determined to carry through, the entire group faithfully followed the well directed guidance of their captain, Wanda Cochenour.

Of the six contest that they fought, the girls came through the winners in five of these, while the sixth was lost only by one additional basket of the opposing team. In addition, Miss Bushey arranged for several practice games with squads from neighboring towns.

With their square playing and strong sportsmanship, every girl must have remembered the ultimate aim of true sportsmanship, "For when the One Great Scorer comes to write against your name, He writes not that you won or lost but how you played the game."

The following record testifies as to the fine work of this year's squad:

Findlay	32	Liberty	17
Findlay	24	Bucyrus	26
Findlay	53	Fostoria	23
Findlay	36	North Baltimore	18
Findlay	26	Carey	6
Findlay	34	Mt. Cory	17
Totals	205	Opponents	117

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

IMO CAVINS—Forward

The most steady and resourceful of all the players was Imo, quick to decide and quicker to execute her attacks with the ball. Not the flashy type of athlete but the calm and accurate one bears the burden of the play.

VIOLET SIMENDINGER—Forward

The twists and evasive turns that Violet displayed foiled many a guard desirous of spoiling the shot that seldom failed to drop through the basket. Always alert and dependable, she produced a brilliance more effective than the most forceful of players.

FRONA MILLER—Guard

Tall and strong, Frona owned a quality of reliable playing not found in all athletes. Her skillful changes from guarding the opponent to leading the onslaught of basket shots pointed out a sharp versatility of ability which is the aim of all sports practices.

MARY LOUISE WINDERS—Guard

Firm of foot and strong in her movements, the true sportswoman is able to hold her ground and carry through an action when the opportunity opens the way. We recall many a scrap in which "Pete" scratched the basketball hide in her determination to possess the ball.

WANDA COCHENOUR—(Captain)—Guard

A capable captain and a tireless leader, Wanda possessed a vigor and courage that made her an excellent standing guard. She was quick and light in movements and untiring in physical exertion even in the midst of trying plays that taxed her defense work.

RUTH CALDWELL—Forward

"Shorty" has been developing her basketball energies since the first days at junior high, and with the final season she has produced a fast and furious brand of work exasperating to opponent guards. A marked endurance and a flash of power were hers.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

GLADA STARLIPER—Forward

Though new to basketball fans, Glada has begun a type of work needed for teams to come. Another year of basketball will surely see her foremost among the girls, if she keeps on with her playing of this year.

BETTY TYNER—Forward

With the first attempt at anything new we expect to view an amateur form of work, but this was not true with Betty's ball playing. Though but a new member of the squad, she rapidly developed into one of the veteran players in her reliability.

DOROTHY KING—Guard

Just as "Might makes right," so did Dorothy's strength show itself a great asset in her guarding. None were more effective than she, for once she gained her ground, her defense work was firmly established and no forward found it easy to overcome her swift movements.

CORRINE JACOBS—Guard

Corrine is one of the veterans at the game of girls' basketball, and through her years of practice she has furthered a cheerfulness and good will that is the object of athletic contests. Though not remarkable, her playing was steady and well-balanced.

RUTH BOGART—Guard

Fidelity and ability to fit into a more advanced mechanism of playing is the quality that must be possessed by every good amateur player. Surely Ruth displayed a willingness and tact of work that boosts her to next year's team.

LUCILLE POWELL—Forward

From these underclassmen we find ample material for a fine team for next season. If she continues her type of work, Lucille will fit herself for the position for jumping center for the future team, a post that demands her quickness and height.

BOYS' INTRA-MURAL BASKETBALL

FIRST—S. Moyer, R. McMahon, E. Moyer.

SECOND—O. Price, G. Leatherman, J. Price, C. Mitchell.

Usually with the commencement of any intra-mural contest it is popularly agreed that the upperclassmen are favored to grasp the final honors. This year the same tradition remained established until a rising junior team of basketball players began to develop its strength and spirit.

At the close of the yearly basketball tournament Home Room 206, with Miss Mable Shilling as faculty director, emerged with the victorious score. This team, well organized and swift in their playing, had little trouble winning their consecutive games. The entire team was balanced with fine, coordinating players, and, although the group contained no varsity players, the skill each boy showed revealed a thorough knowledge and a vital experience in basketball.

Richard McMahon led the team as guard and captain. The rest of the players were Ogden Price, guard; George Leatherman, guard; Stanley Moyer, forward; Eugene Moyer, forward; Charles Mitchell, center; Donald Powell, guard; and Keith Knight, guard. This same team claims the honor of having conquered the basketball boys of Ottawa High School.

GIRLS' INTRA-MURAL BASKETBALL

FIRST—L. Haide, R. Caldwell, W. Cochenour.

SECOND—E. Collins, I. Cavins.

THIRD—Miss Hudnell.

Displaying real sportsmanship and energy, the girls of the rival home rooms vied with each other in many well-waged games during the sixth basketball tournament to be played in this high school. As every one of the girls' home rooms cherished more or less the honor of seizing first place in basketball, each room sent forth its fastest and most skilled players, who exhibited excellent enthusiasm and ability. Miss Geneva Bushey, head of the girls' athletics, capably managed the entire tournament.

For the second consecutive year Home Room 108, backed by three fine varsity players, carried the final victory from Home Room 211B with a score of 40 to 7. Home Room 112 trailed third.

The winning team included Ruth Caldwell, captain and forward; Imo Cavins and Pauline Doty, forwards; Wanda Cochenour, Leota Haide, and Evelyn Collins, guards; and Effaleita Gohlke and Beatrice Beltz, substitutes.

BOYS' INTRA-MURAL BASEBALL

FIRST—W. McCormick, P. Mitchell, T. Wolfe, L. Shafer, K. Roller.
SECOND—W. Miller, R. McIntosh, R. Schwab, R. Kwis.
THIRD—J. Spangler, Mr. Hutson, J. Poole.

It is apparent that Mr. Dale Hutson's homeroom, 213, seems to have acquired the habit of winning the intra-mural baseball honors. Several years ago this room was instrumental in proouring the large cup for the high school indoor baseball contest, and ever since then it has produced the championship team every year, except one.

As the old yearly interest was steadily augmented, established tradition urged the home room members to enthusiastically back their team striving to perpetuate the former annual wins. The final and deciding game was played against 212, the old rival of the conquering room. With the approach of the fateful event wagers ran high between the members of the vying rooms.

Throughout the year the team's performance, possessing the punch that always carried it to the top, was of marked consistency. As in all previous years Mr. C. A. Robbins promoted the intra-mural contests and refereed the tourney with impartial interest.

GIRLS' INTRA-MURAL VOLLEY BALL

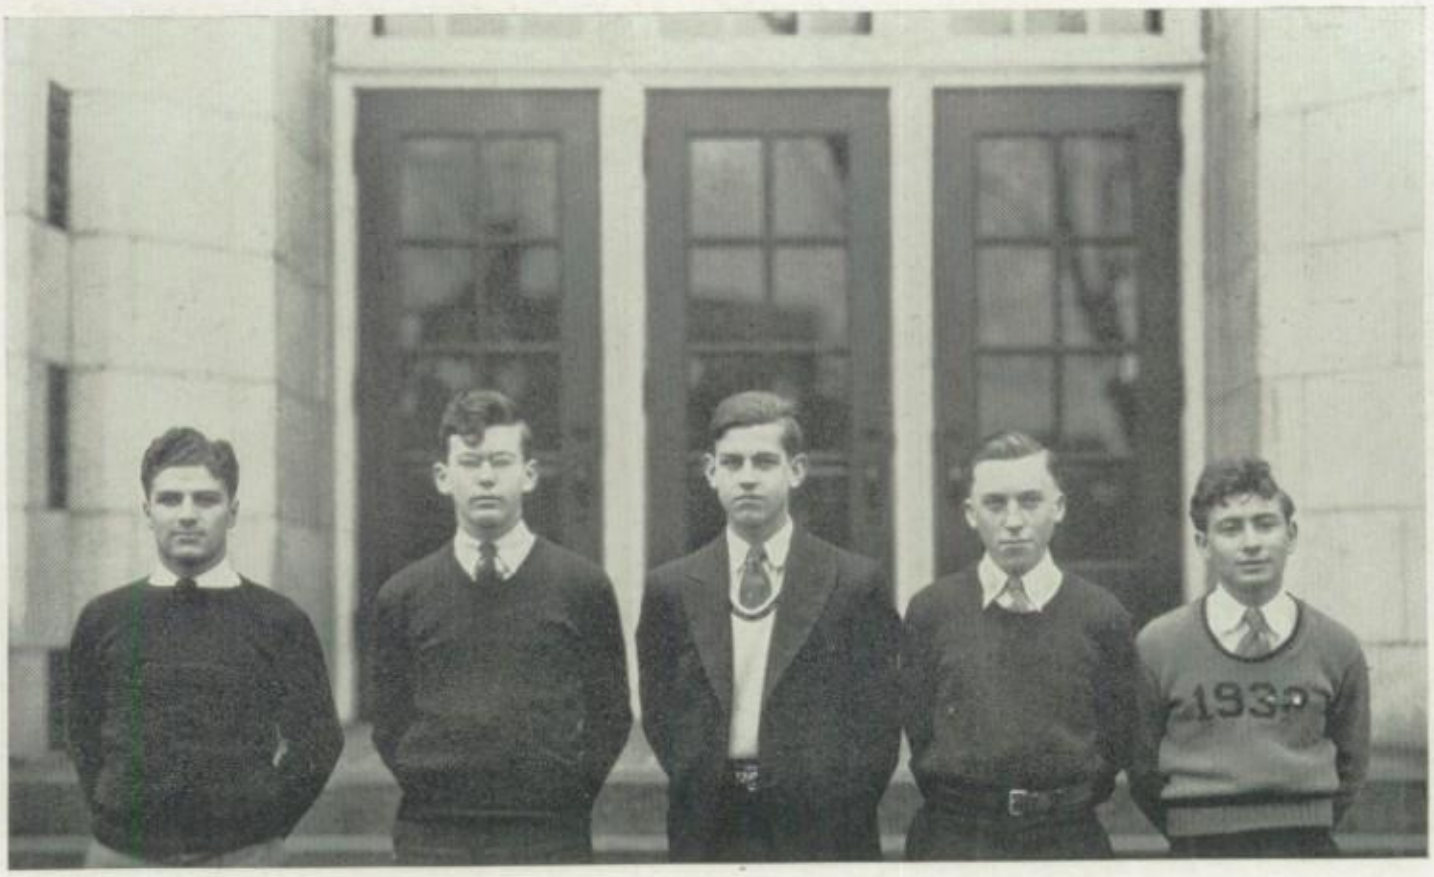
FIRST—L. Denman, L. Haide, I. Cavins, P. Doty, E. Gohlke.
SECOND—R. Caldwell, W. Cochenour, B. Beltz, Miss Hudnell.

Every game played in the winners-losers tournament held between the various girls' home rooms was filled with vigorous competition. The volley ball teams of this year are improved in skill and experience over those of previous times. Greater interest has been aroused in this speedy sport so that each room produced a fast and well organized, though small, team.

The final game of this contest brought together two teams enthusiastic in their determination to steal the victorious laurels. Home Room 214, led by Marie Weising, played the last game against the winning room, 108. Necessary praise must go to this sophomore home room for their concentrated playing that nearly conquered the senior girls. No other season of volley ball or of any other intra-mural sport has presented an underclassmen team so nearly equal to the senior girls.

Imo Cavins was the fast captain of the winning group. The other members of the victorious team, a great many of them varsity players of the girls' basketball team, were 'Wanda Cochenour, Ruth Caldwell, Beatrice Beltz, Loretta Denman, Pauline Doty, Effaleita Gohlke, and Leota Haide. This team, small for a volley ball group, cooperated smoothly and rapidly in their playing with the result that they own the honor of victory. Miss Geneva Bushey, instructor of girls' athletics, directed the tournament.

HOCKEY



FIRST—C. Brandman, G. Arnold, R. Blosser, C. Blackford, H. Bond.

This year was the first time that Findlay High School has attempted to start a hockey team or to take any definite interest in the game at all. It is among the several other minor sports which our school is trying to develop into standing activities for the students. Often has a hockey schedule been considered as an addition to our extensive series of athletic contests, but it was not until this year that the sport received enough attention to become popular.

All the games were played at the fine pond behind the Donnell Stadium, which is an ideal place for ice skating. Every game on the schedule was played during the Christmas vacation, when the ice was in its best condition. Many boys participated in the games, enough to produce several strong teams.

Robert Blosser was the captain of the champion team, composed of boys from Home Room 204. His boys played a strong, steady game, swift and sure. This team was ready to play every game well, and a great deal of praise should go to these fellows for their enthusiasm in the leadership of this sport in our school. Also, sophomore Home Room 202 helped in working up interest in this new sport.

TRACK

FIRST—P. Moore, R. Corbin, L. Copeland, R. Phillips, G. Stover, R. Schwyn, C. Brandman, F. Folk, J. Neuman, R. Gohlke.

SECOND—A. Bromley, H. Arras, P. Walter, C. Edgington, S. Moyer, R. Davis, F. Sausser, G. Arnold.

THIRD—R. Littleton, C. Davis, R. Steegman, R. Hendricks, M. Briggs, J. Snyder, R. Reese, C. Porter, R. Beltz.

FOURTH—R. Arnold, R. Corbin, R. Westfall, A. Routzon, J. Child, J. LaRowe, R. Mitchell, H. Johns, W. Beltz.

FIFTH—R. Stanfield, R. Loach, F. Frank, C. Lafferty, W. Foster, K. Knight, R. Alesch.

SIXTH—W. Whyland, D. Mason, R. McIntosh, C. Saltz, R. Holloway, D. Armbrecht, R. Roberts.

SEVENTH—Mr. Frack, E. Ladd, F. Whipple, M. Cobb, C. Mitchell, G. Leatherman, R. Child, R. Boren, P. Miles.

In the past our school has shown little interest in track sports of any kind. The boys composing the team of this season are many and skilled in number, and they have shown promise of developing this division of athletics into a form of sports vital to high school physical training. This, together with several other minor sports, has received a great amount of encouragement during this year.

Following the first few practices, the boys were classified as distance runners, dash men, weight men, or jumpers. At the inter-class contest the senior fellows won the meet with a close score. The school has purchased new track equipment, which adds possibilities to the sport. The inter-city schedule includes meets with Lima South and Toledo Scott, as well as the District Toledo Meet and the State Columbus Meet.

MODERN advertising knows no limiting habits of tradition, no long tried rules of form and make-up, and no ultimate height of perfection of color and art design. To advert the public deliberator to a favorable consideration of the articles for sale artists of commercial designing attempt the ever new and feel no satisfaction in following the trend already pioneered and perfected. To refine more radical methods, to develop sincerity of description, to promote appreciably artistic illustration, and to encourage fine conceptions in untried style in the realms of commercial advertising is to broaden the subtle appreciation of the critical public eye.

During his first few days in camp, Brown was the victim of so many practical jokes that he doubted all men and their motives. One night while he was on guard, the tall figure of one of the officers loomed up in the darkness before him.

"Who goes there?" he challenged.

"Major Moses," replied the officer.

Brown scented a new joke.

"Glad to meet you, Moses," he said cheerfully. "Advance and give the ten commandments."
